GUSTAR

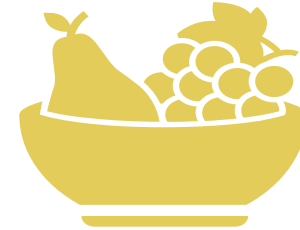

(Not really “to like”)

GUSTAR = To be pleasing to (to like)

The verb “gustar” can NOT be translated literally to mean “to like.”

“Gustar” really means:

something/somebody is pleasing to (a person)

- I like bananas = Bananas are pleasing to me.
- Casey likes to swim = Swimming is pleasing to Casey.
- We like pizza = Pizza is pleasing to us.
- They like to watch tv = Watching tv is pleasing to them.

English vs. Spanish

In English, the person (subject) is the one doing the liking.

Ex) I like chocolate.

Ex) We like to go to the movies.

In Spanish, the object is doing the action of “pleasing” the person. The person is the receiver of the pleasure that the object gives. So essentially, the sentences are read backwards.

Ex) Chocolate pleases me.

Ex) Going to the movies
pleases us.

All of our options:

- A mí • me
- A ti • te

- A él • le
- A ella
- A Marco

- A nosotros • nos
